The Prompting Problem

The Prompting Problem

You enter a cave, it's pitch black you cannot see to go forward or back, what do you do?

Light a torch >>> (sorry you have no matches)

Go left >>> (you hit a wall)

Go right >>> (you hit a wall)

Go forward >>> (you hit a wall)

> ... Go back?

>>> suddenly a portal appears transporting you to a new level in the cave

What if the prompt isn't the interaction that matters?
What if the primary site of interaction we should be focusing on is the brief?

- Context-Based – the physical structure of the filesystem carries meaning
- Ritual-Based – work has modes of activity rather than just tasks
- Orientation over Automation –
Commands gently remind about place and indicate an epistemic stance on mode of activity

The Lesson

The Lesson

`Orientation` is required for meaningful action,
and at its base orientation requires defining `boundaries`.
